B, I make no apology for this post/contact.

There appears no other available means to contact you, thus using this forum to advise you that I take offence in part at your 11/05/15 comment posted on <http://louise-allan.com/2015/05/11/unhappy-mothers-day/>

Most particularly, please revise your wording re "horrific childhood" to alleged horrific childhood, otherwise your words reflect poorly on me.

Although compassionate as am I, your post is accepting the written word as truth. It is not all truth. Rather, it is a created -to-suit recollection. You are aware that Louise suffers from depression. I thought a person of your years and experience would well know there are sometimes hidden agendas and 2 sides to each version. You don't know the other side and I believe you would be well shocked if you did. You believe a given version, and have commented on that belief. My perception is that your comment adversely portrays both my late husband and myself. That is the offensive aspect to which I above refer.

Regrettably and clearly, for Louise her version of the past is not done.
